

Coleen Lawlor, Bellows Falls, VT.

I live in Rockingham Vermont and am concerned with habitat degradation in the area. The Upper Meadows in Rockingham Vermont is currently providing habitat for grassland species. The Upper Meadows is currently being managed by delayed mowing. Delayed mowing protects the rapidly declining and threatened grassland bird species that nest there. I visit the Upper Meadows to see these species as do others from the area. I believe that Great River Hydro should continue the practice of delayed mowing at the Upper Meadows for the length of the contract.
